SOME OF THE ADVANTAGES OFFERED

By That School for the Education of the Young Men of the State-Some Seeming Paradoxes Satisfactorily Explained-The Attendance of Students and the Number of Graduates. Morgantown as a Place of Resi-

An Intelligences reporter met with Professor Whitehill, of the West Virginia University, at the Hotel Windsor yesterday, and had quite an interesting talk with him on University matters.

"Professor," inquired the reporter, "what is the outlook for the school for the coming year?"

"It is expected," said he, "that most of the old students will return, and many new ones have been heard from. The past year has been a hard one with the farmers, and the scarcity of money in consequence of the drouth and panic may keep some students at home who, may keep some students at home who, under more favorable circumstances, would attend the University, but it is expected that the attendance will not be materially lessened. From Wheeling and vicinity there will be a greater number of students this year at Morganiown than have been there for several years."

gantown than have been there for several years."

"Why has the attendance in the past not been greater?"

"Because students have not been generally aware of the advantages which are offered by the University. If West Virginia students, before deciding to attend college elsewhere, would take the time and trouble to investigate the claims of the University to their suport, if they would go to Morgantown and see what a splendid equipped institution is located there, few of them would leave the state to acquire an eduwould leave the state to acquire an education."
"What are some of the special advanwhat are some of the specim advan-tages offered to West Virginia students by the University?"

"In the first place the expenses are low. Tuition is practically free in all the departments. From each of the thirteen senatorial districts eight cadets may be appointed, and these are furnished with books and stationary free. Board and lodging are cheaper in Morgantown than in most college towns. The average total expenses per year are from $140 to $200."
"In the second place the University is "in the second piace the University is equipped with the buildings and apparatus necessary for carrying on the work of its various departments. There are now five large brick buildings in which the work of instruction is carried on, and there is in addition the Agricultural Experiment. Station which the work of instruction is carried on, and there is in addition the Agricultural Experiment Station. These buildings have cost in the neighborhood of $200,000, exclusive of their equipment. There is just now being completed a scientific building, which, although not as large as many other buildings of the same character in the country, is as complete in its appointments as any building of its kind in any part of the country. The laboratories are provided with every convenience for scientific work. Additions to the mechanical building and to the experiment station building are now being made, and thus increased facilities for advanced scientific work are continually being afforded."

"In the third place the faculty is large, and is competent to carry on the work of instruction in the various departments. There are sixteen professors and teachers connected with the University. The organization includes sors and teachers connected with the University. The organization includes a collegiate department, in which are offered classical, scientific, agricultural, civil and mechanical engineering course; a law department; military department; a preparatory department and an agricultural experiment station. "Each one of these departments is well equipped for the work undertaken. The instruction is practical and thorough, and well adapted to the needs of West Virginia students. The graduates of these departments are holding responsible positions in this and other states, and in character and learning fully measure up to the standard of the men sent out by the best institutions of men sent out by the best institutions of the country."

"What attractions are offered

"What attractions are offered by Morgantown as a place of residence?"
"It is easily accessible by river from Pittsburgh, and by rall from West Virginia towns. The climate is healthful, the air is pure and free from malaria. The town is supplied with mountain water, and has an abundant supply of hatural gas. It has also an electric light plant in successful operation. The University grounds comprise about eighteen acres, and command a beautiful view of the Monongabela river and the surrounding country. A more ful view of the Monongabels river and the surrounding country. A more beautiful location for an institution of learning cannot be found in any other part of the state. The people are noted for their hospitality, and the social standard is of the highest degree."

"How many students have attended the University since its organization?"

"The records show that between 4,000 and 4,100 students have attended the University, and fully nine-tenths of them have been from West Virginia."

"How many of these students have graduated."

"There have been 177 graduates in

"There have been 177 graduates in the collogiate department and 110 in the law department."

the collegiate department and 110 in the law department."

"Why is it that not more students have remained to graduate?"

"The work of the University is measured rather by the number of students who have attended, than by the number who have graduated. Three reasons occur to me why the number of graduates has not been greater. In the first place, the lack of preparatory schools in the state has caused many students to come to the University with insufficient preparation for the collegiate work. The time these students could afford to spend at the University has been largely taken up in bringing up this past work. In the second place, a high standard has always been maintained, and a degree has always meant that the student has been liberally educated. In the third place the adoption of the school system during the administration of President Wilson gave opportunities for special courses of study."

PANIC IN KICKAPOO CAMP.

The Bold Warriors Receive a Rescript That Virtually Means War.

It seems that Chief Goosequill, of Lazearville, has taken exceptions to the action of the Kickapoo tribe in bringing charges against Rain-in-the-Face, and has written a lengthy communication to Chief Turkey Feathers, stating that the Kickapoo tribe had been too long off the reservation, and that he would immediately issue orders to Chief Red Paint to bring them in. As the Kickapoo tribe scknowledges no Medicine Man except Old Gold Dust, to fill their prescriptions, they propose to treat the communication—not to beer—but with the contempt it deserves. Shacknasty Jim will have charge of the further investigation into the crimes charged sgainst Rain-in-the Face on Saturday avening at the council wigwam, when he may be discharged and Old Gold Dust ordered to declare war against the Lazear-ville Leeks. If this war is declared the tightness in the money market will be stating that the Kickapoo tribe had ville Leeks. If this war is declared the tightness in the money market will be relieved, and the Kickapoo tribe will have many wampum belts to distribute in their camp. If the moon rises Saturday night with splotches of rich, red gore on it the public may anticipate a fall in the price of red paint and feathers.

Yesterday about noon Joe Bentz, a glassworker employed at the North Wheeling bottle works, climbed a tree to cut a dead branch off for a neighbor, Mrs. Merge, who lives at 307 Main street, and while at work the limb on which he stood broke with his weight, letting him fall to the ground, a dis-tance of eighteen or twenty feet. He tance of eighteen or twenty feet. He struck with great force on his face and stomach. His right hand was involuntarily extended to break the force of the fall, and he struck on it with such force as to break his wrist. Dr. Ackermann happened to be in the vicinity, and was called in to attend to Bentz's injuries. He said the chances were against the wounded man's recovery, though it was too early to predict positively the result.
